Key Findings

AARP's first ever election day poll of voters and likely voters age 45+ in New Hampshire found that protecting Social Security and making sure large corporations act responsibly are dominant issues in determining which candidate to support, with three in four voters saying they are very important. Other domestic issues, including the economy, taxes, homeland security, and adding prescription drug coverage to Medicare are very important to more than six in ten voters and likely voters in deciding which candidate to support.

- Three in four (75%) voters say protecting Social Security was very important to their voting decisions.
- Making sure large corporations act responsibly is cited as very important by the same proportion (75%) of voters and likely voters.
- Two thirds (66%) say the economy, taxes, and homeland security are very important in determining their voting choices.
- Six in ten (60%) say adding prescription drug coverage to Medicare was very important to their decisions about which Congressional and Senate candidates to vote for in the election.

New Hampshire voters and likely voters age 45+ consider passing laws protecting Social Security and adding prescription drug coverage to Medicare to be top or high priorities for the next Congress.

- When Congress returns to Washington in January 2003, over three-quarters consider passing legislation to protect Social Security to be a top (45%) or high (34%) priority for the next Congress.
- Similarly, seven in ten consider passing a law to add prescription drug coverage to Medicare to be a top (33%) or high (37%) priority.

Methodology

AARP commissioned ICR, a national survey research firm, to conduct a random digit dial (RDD) telephone survey of voters and likely voters age 45 or older in New Hampshire. Respondents were screened for age and for their likelihood of voting. A total of 401 interviews were completed from November 2 through noon, November 5, 2002. The survey has a sampling error of plus or minus 4.89 percent. This means that in 95 out of 100 samples of this size, the results obtained in the sample would fall in a range of 4.89 percentage points of what would have been obtained if every voter and likely voter in New Hampshire age 45 or older had been surveyed. Responses to all survey questions are in the attached annotated questionnaire.
