CARF-CCAC (COMMISSION ON ACCREDITATION OF REHABILITATION FACILITIES)
The Alzheimer's Association is a national nonprofit organization founded in 1980 by family caregivers. Its objectives are to support research into the prevention, treatment and cure of Alzheimer's disease; to organize chapters in a national network of family support groups; to educate lay people and professionals about the disease; and to advise local and federal government agencies on public policy and legislation. The Association has chapters throughout the United States, offering support and services. It has resources in Spanish, Korean and English, and it publishes a quarterly newsletter, ADVANCES.

AAAs were established by the 1973 amendments to the Older Americans Act. They are public or private nonprofit organizations or units of local government designated by the state and responsible for a specific geographic area. AAAs advocate on behalf of older people within the area and develop community-based plans for services to meet their needs. AAAs also administer federal, state, local, and private funds through contracts with local service providers. Each AAA is required to have a citizen advisory council. AAAs, along with the State Units on Aging and the federal Administration on Aging, comprise the National Network on Aging. There are approximately 670 AAAs nationwide. To find Area Agencies on Aging and Title VI programs across the country, call the toll free Eldercare Locator at (800) 677-1116.

ADA

AGE DISCRIMINATION ACT OF 1975
U. S. Department of Education
Office of Civil Rights, Mary E. Switzer Building
330 C Street, SW
Washington, DC 20202
(800) 421-3481
(202) 205-9862 (FAX)
E-mail: OCR@ed.gov

The ADA prohibits discrimination on the basis of age in any programs or activities that receive federal financial support if that program is not explicitly aimed at a particular age group. The ADA applies across the age spectrum from young to old. Amendments passed in 1986 further clarified its mandate. The ADA is enforced by the Office for Civil Rights. It does not cover employment discrimination.

ADA

AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT OF 1990
U. S. Department of Justice
Civil Rights Division, Disability Rights Section - NYAV
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530
(800) 514-0301
Web site: www.ada.gov

The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) of 1990 provides protection to persons of all ages who have disabilities, whether physical or mental. This law provides protections equivalent to those granted minorities under the civil rights acts. The ADA prohibits discrimination in employment, public services, public accommodations, transportation and telecommunications. On June 22, 1999, the United States Supreme Court issued the Olmstead Decision which interpreted Title II of the ADA and challenged Federal, state and local governments to develop more opportunities for individuals with disabilities through more accessible systems of cost-effective community-based services. The ADA is enforced by the Department of Justice.
ADEA

AGE DISCRIMINATION IN EMPLOYMENT ACT OF 1967
U. S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission
1801 L Street, NW
Washington, DC 20507
(202) 663-4900
Web site: www.eeoc.gov/laws

In 1967, the U.S. Congress enacted the ADEA to protect employees and job-seekers from arbitrary age discrimination. The law, as amended in 1986, covers workers age 40 and older who work for employers with 20 or more employees. It promotes employment of people based on their ability rather than age. The Older Worker's Benefit Protection Act amended the ADEA in 1990 to establish the rights of older workers to fair and nondiscriminatory benefits in employment. The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) handles age discrimination complaints.

ASA is a national professional membership organization founded in 1954. Its members include practitioners, educators, researchers, and lay people working with and on behalf of the aging. It offers a wide variety of programs for continuing education and specialized training in aging. It also works at the national level to influence public policy. Publications include a quarterly journal, GENERATIONS, a bimonthly newspaper, AGING TODAY, an electronic member newsletter, ASA CONNECTION and eight quarterly newsletters by ASA's specialized constituent groups.
ASSISTED LIVING

Group residential facilities, other than licensed nursing homes, that provide protective oversight and personal care on a 24-hour basis for persons who need assistance with activities of daily living. These facilities are similar to board and care homes except that they are often only for private-pay patients.

BOARD AND CARE

A living arrangement in which the resident is provided with a room, meals, help with activities of daily living, and protective supervision. These homes are also called residential care facilities, community care homes, sheltered care facilities, adult foster care, group homes, or boarding homes. Board and care homes may be unlicensed, and some states do very little monitoring.

CCCS

CENTER FOR COMMUNICATION AND CONSUMER SERVICES
NAIC (NATIONAL AGING INFORMATION CENTER)
1 Massachusetts Avenue, NW, 5th Floor
Washington, DC 20201
(202) 619-0724
(202) 357-3523
Web site: www.aoa.gov
E-mail: naic@aoa.gov

The Center for Communication and Consumer Services (CCCS) maintains aging information resources on programs, policies, and services, which it uses to respond to public and staff inquiries. CCCS public inquiries and Aging Information Resource Library units are the successor to the National Aging Information Center (1995-2001). CCCS maintains a searchable bibliographic database - www.aoa.gov/naic/bibinfo.htm - of AoA-funded reports and other aging related products.
CCRC

CONTINUING CARE RETIREMENT COMMUNITY

Continuing Care Retirement Communities (CCRCs) provide shelter, social activities, health care, and support services under a contractual arrangement. Most CCRCs offer a full continuum of care so residents can move from one housing choice to another as need determines. They are usually campus-like complexes with most residents living in their own private apartment units. CCRC campuses usually include an assisted living building (and often a skilled nursing home). Typically, a CCRC requires an entrance fee as well as monthly charges, although some are pay-as-you-go arrangements. It may ask potential residents to meet certain age, health, and financial requirements. A CCRC is sometimes called a life care community.

CGA

CATHOLIC GOLDEN AGE

E-mail: info@catholicgoldenage.org

CGA is a nationwide membership organization founded in 1974 to serve the interests and needs of Catholics age 50 and over with an emphasis on religion and spirituality. CGA represents its members' interests at the national level, monitors legislation that affects older citizens, and helps fund programs designed to enhance the well-being of older people. It is active at the community level through CGA chapters. CGA provides its members with various consumer discounts, health and life insurance plans, and Medicare supplement plans. Publications include reports on human rights, world peace, health care and social security, and a quarterly magazine, CGA WORLD for its members.

CLPE

COMMISSION ON LEGAL PROBLEMS OF THE ELDERLY

See COLA (COMMISSION ON LAW AND AGING)
In 2001, the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) was renamed Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services. Created in 1977, HCFA, now CMS, has oversight of the Medicare and Medicaid programs. (See Social Security Act, Titles XVIII and XIX)

The National & Community Service Trust Act of 1993, signed into law on September 21, 1993, created the CNCS to administer national volunteer service programs. The law combined the existing Commission on National & Community Service and ACTION and reformed their programs into three broad organizations: (1) Learn & Serve America; (2) AmeriCorps, consisting of Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA) and the National Civilian Community Corps (NCCC); and (3) Senior Service Corps, consisting of the Foster Grandparent Program (FGP), the Retired & Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), and the Senior Companion Program (SCP).

The EEOC was created by Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and began operating on July 2, 1965. The purpose of the EEOC is to eliminate discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability, or age in hiring, promoting, firing, wages, testing, training, apprenticeship, and all other terms and conditions of employment.

ERISA

EMPLOYEE RETIREMENT INCOME SECURITY ACT OF 1974
Employee Benefits Security Administration
US Department of Labor
200 Constitution Avenue, NW
Washington, DC  20210
(202) 693-8440
Web site: www.dol.gov/EBSA

ERISA sets minimum standards for employee pension and welfare plans in the private sector that employers must meet to quality for tax-favored status. ERISA was enacted in 1974 to protect the interests of plan participants and their beneficiaries; it has been amended many times since. ERISA does not require employers to establish a plan, but it requires those that do to meet certain standards, including those involving vesting, participation, nondiscrimination, insurance, and funding. The law generally does not set specific levels of benefits nor does it address benefit adequacy.

The ILC-USA is a not-for-profit research and education organization affiliated with the Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York City. Its mission is to help societies address longevity and population aging by raising awareness among the public and private sector about the impact of longevity; conducting research and educational programs in health, work, and family; and drawing on the expertise of scholars from multiple disciplines.
The International Social Security Association (ISSA) was founded in 1927 to extend and strengthen sickness insurance. Its activities were soon widened to include old age, chronic illness or disability, and survivors' insurance. In 1944, at the International Labour Conference in Philadelphia, a resolution was adopted to promote cooperation among social security organizations, the regular interchange of information, and the study of common problems in social security. ISSA publishes a quarterly journal, THE INTERNATIONAL SOCIAL SECURITY REVIEW and a quarterly newsletter, TRENDS IN SOCIAL SECURITY. ISSA supports Social Security Worldwide (SSW) covering six different databases on social protection available by subscription on the internet and CD ROM.

The Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA), enacted in 1982, established a nationwide system of job training programs administered jointly by state and local governments and the private sector. Title IIA authorizes training and services for economically disadvantaged individuals. Overhaul of the JTPA in 1992 established a new older worker set-aside at 5 percent of Title IIA adult worker funds. Dislocated workers receive employment and training help under Title III, the Economic Dislocation and Worker Adjustment Assistance Act.

The Leadership Council of Aging Organizations (LCAO) was founded in 1978 as a coalition of national nonprofit organizations concerned with the well-being of older persons. The coalition's purpose is to foster communication and resource sharing among member organizations and to provide leadership and joint advocacy strategies for representing the aging in the federal policy arena. The LCAO is chaired on a rotating basis by a different member organization each year. Some of its members include AARP, ASA, GSA, NCOA, and NARFE.

NSCLC, established in 1972, provides litigation support services, legal research, and national policy representation for lawyers and paralegals serving the low income older population. It provides assistance primarily to legal field staff in programs funded by the Legal Services Corporation and the AoA, as well as to private attorneys. NSCLC attorneys specialize in areas such as Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, nursing home issues, private and public pensions, age discrimination, and protective services. The Center publishes the WASHINGTON WEEKLY newsletter, the quarterly NURSING HOME LAW LETTER, the monthly SOCIAL SECURITY/SSI INFORMATIONAL MAILING, and numerous other materials and manuals.

NURSING HOME REFORM LAW

Congress enacted comprehensive nursing home quality care provisions as part of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987 (OBRA 87). The legislation requires nursing homes to inform residents of their legal rights, to annually conduct a comprehensive assessment of each resident, to meet specific staffing requirements, and to provide training for nurse aides in specific areas. It requires states to monitor nursing homes and ensure that they comply with the law's provisions.
OLDER AMERICANS ACT OF 1965

Reauthorized with amendments in 2000, this Act serves millions of older Americans who are as diverse as America's communities. As with previous reauthorizations since 1965, Congress has adjusted the mission and responsibilities of the Act to address the increasing needs of a rapidly expanding aging population. The legislation retains coordination and advocacy as principal responsibilities originally mandated to the aging network under the Act. The amendments will improve a great number of programs and services under the OAA, including nutrition, transportation, the ombudsman program, legal assistance, grants to Indian tribes, employment of low-income seniors, and many others. Elements of the Act that warrant particular attention include:

* A new program that provides support for family caregiving that involves older persons.
* Cost sharing provisions that permit states to require contributions for certain services.
* New state and local flexibility in administering nutrition and supportive services programs.
* Improved administrative oversight and enforcement tools to ensure program accountability.
* Enhanced involvement of states in the protection of consumer rights and service access.
* Enhanced targeting of services to vulnerable older persons, including persons in rural areas.
* Increased flexibility to promote intergenerational activities.
* Expanded nationwide access to information about services in local areas.
* A new distribution formula for funds under caregiver support, and Titles III and V.
* New provisions in Title V specify when national grants are to be forfeited by current grantees and competed among new bidders.

The Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation was established by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA). PBGC administers insurance programs that guarantee the payment of basic retirement benefits, within limits set by law, to participants of private defined benefit pension plans. PBGC programs are financed by premiums paid by employers sponsoring such pension plans, investment returns on PBGC assets, and recoveries from employers responsible for under funded and terminated plans. Currently the PBGC protects the retirement incomes of about 44 million American workers in more than 35,000 private defined benefit pension plans.

The Pension Rights Center is the only consumer advocacy organization dedicated solely to protecting the pension rights of workers, retirees, and their families. As the nation's pension watchdog group, they have taken the lead in targeting pension inequities, proposing realistic reform measures, and helping individuals understand and enforce their pension rights. The Center's pension policy activities focus on ending unfair practices in retirement programs, and expanding pension coverage. The Center's pension help activities are aimed at making sure that people receive the pensions they have earned. The Center's pension publications provide easy-to-understand explanations of complex pension laws.

The REA, which amended ERISA in 1984, reduced the age at which workers must be allowed to participate in a pension plan, liberalized break-in-service rules for vesting purposes, created spousal rights to pension benefits through qualified domestic relations orders in the event of divorce, and required qualified pension plans to provide automatic survivor benefits unless waived by both spouses. As a result of these and other changes, a larger proportion of workers, especially women, should benefit from private pension plans.

SNF

SKILLED NURSING FACILITY

Under Medicare and Medicaid, a skilled nursing facility is a licensed institution (or a distinct part of an institution) primarily engaged in providing skilled nursing care or rehabilitation services.
First enacted in 1935, the Social Security Act provides for the general welfare of individuals and families by establishing a wide range of programs. The most well-known programs are insurance for retired and disabled workers, their families, and their survivors; and hospital and medical insurance for aged, disabled, and low-income persons. Other programs include black lung benefits, supplemental security income, unemployment insurance, and various other public assistance and welfare services. See selected titles below.

Title II: Federal Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance Benefits (OASDI). Enacted in 1935, Social Security replaces a portion of earned income lost as a result of a worker's retirement, disability, or death. Monthly benefits are paid as a matter of earned right to workers who gain insured status and to their eligible spouses, children, and survivors. Eligibility and benefit amounts are determined by the worker's contributions to Social Security. There is no means test to qualify.

Title XVI: Supplemental Security Income for the Aged, Blind, and Disabled (SSI). The SSI program, implemented in 1974, was designed to reduce poverty. It assures a minimum level of income to people who are aged, blind, or disabled and who have limited income and/or resources. The basic federal program is funded through the general revenues. States may choose to administer their own SSI programs and supplement the basic federal benefits with state dollars.

Title XVIII: Health Insurance for the Aged and Disabled (Medicare). The Medicare program was enacted in 1965. It provides health insurance coverage for most persons aged 65 or older, those disabled persons under age 65 who are qualified through entitlement to Social Security or Railroad Retirement benefits, and most persons who have end-stage renal disease. The program consists of two parts: Part A, Hospital Insurance (HI), and Part B, Supplemental Medical Insurance (SMI). The HI program provides basic protection against the costs of hospital and related post-hospital care, some home health services, and hospice care. The SMI program is a voluntary program for which enrollees must pay a monthly premium. Part B helps pay for physician services, outpatient care, certain home health visits, and other medical services. Neither Part A nor Part B pays for outpatient prescription drugs.

In December 2003, Title XVIII was amended by the Medicare Prescription Drug Improvement and Modernization Act of 2003 (MMA). The purpose of MMA is to provide for a voluntary program for prescription drug coverage under the Medicare Program among other provisions. For additional information, see the MMA entry. The prescription drug coverage benefit begins January 1, 2006.
Title XIX: Medical Assistance Program (Medicaid). This program became law in 1965. It provides medical assistance for certain low-income individuals and families with low-incomes and assets. It is the largest source of funding for medical services for our country's poorest people. It is financed jointly by state and federal funds. The program varies considerably from state to state.

Title XX: Block Grant to States for Social Services. Added to the Social Security Act in 1975, this capped entitlement program provides federal grants to states to fund such diverse activities as child and adult day care, protective and emergency services for children and adults, home-based services for older persons, staff training, and program planning. Funds are allocated to the states based on population.

Title II: Federal Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance Benefits (OASDI) Enacted in 1935, Social Security replaces a portion of earned income lost as a result of a worker's retirement, disability, or death. Monthly benefits are paid as a matter of earned right to workers who gain insured status and to their eligible spouses, children, and survivors.

Title XVI: Supplemental Security Income for the Aged, Blind, and Disabled (SSI). The SSI program, which was implemented in 1974, was designed to reduce poverty. It assures a minimum level of income to people who are aged, blind, or disabled and who have limited income or resources. The basic federal program is funded through the general revenues. States may choose to administer their own SSI programs and supplement the basic federal benefits with state dollars.

Title XVIII: Health Insurance for the Aged and Disabled (Medicare). The Medicare program was enacted in 1965. It provides health insurance coverage for most persons aged 65 or older, some disabled persons under age 65, and certain persons who have end-stage renal disease. The program consists of two parts: Part A, Hospital Insurance (HI), and Part B, Supplemental Medical Insurance (SMI). The HI program provides basic protection against the costs of hospital and related post-hospital care, some home health services, and hospice care. The SMI program is a voluntary program for which enrollees must pay a monthly premium. Part B helps pay for physician services, outpatient care, certain home health visits, and other medical services. Neither Part A nor Part B pays for outpatient prescription drugs.

Title XIX: Medical Assistance Program (Medicaid). This program became law in 1965. It provides medical assistance for certain low-income individuals and families. It is financed jointly by state and federal funds. The program varies considerably from state to state.

Title XX: Block Grant to States for Social Services. This title was added to the Social Security Act in 1975. The federal government provides grants to states to fund such diverse activities as child and adult day care, protective and emergency services for children and adults, home-based services for older persons, staff training, and program planning.

SSA administers a national program of contributory social insurance. Employees, employers, and the self-employed pay Federal Insurance Contributions Act (FICA) taxes, which are used to pay current beneficiaries. Money not used for benefits or administration is deposited into the Social Security Trust Fund for future beneficiaries. SSA administers the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program and Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF), and it is involved with certain aspects of the black lung provisions of the Federal Coal Mine and Safety Act of 1969.

SUA

STATE UNITS ON AGING

Established by the Older Americans Act of 1965, State Units on Aging are agencies of state governments designated by the governor and the state legislature as focal points for all matters relating to the needs of older persons within the state. The SUAs are responsible for planning, coordinating, funding, and evaluating programs for older persons authorized by both state and federal governments. The goal of SUAs is to improve the quality of life for older Americans by advocating on their behalf and by promoting the development of a comprehensive and coordinated system of social and health services.
