Across the United States, more than 6 million children are being raised in households headed by grandparents and other relatives as parents struggle with substance abuse, mental illness, incarceration, economic hardship, divorce, domestic violence, and other serious problems. These family members (or “kinship caregivers”) are caring for children both inside and outside the foster care system. This fact sheet provides information and resources to help with the challenges they face.

National and State Data

The Children

- Nationally, 4.5 million children are living in grandparent-headed households (6.3% of all children under age 18). This represents a 30% increase from 1990 to 2000.
- There are another 1.5 million children in the United States who are living in households headed by other relatives (2.1% of all children under 18).
- In South Dakota, there are 8,349 children living in grandparent-headed households (4.1% of all the children in the state). There are another 2,367 children living in households headed by other relatives (1.2% of all the children in the state).

The Grandparents

- Nationally, 2.4 million grandparents report they are responsible for their grandchildren living with them: 29% of these grandparents are African American; 17% are Hispanic/Latino; 2% are American Indian or Alaskan Native; 3% are Asian; and 47% are White. 34% of these grandparents live in households without the children’s parents present. 71% are under the age of 60; 19% live in poverty.
- In South Dakota, 4,632 grandparents report they are responsible for their grandchildren living with them [537 in Sioux Falls]: .5% of these grandparents are African American; 1% are Hispanic/Latino; 47% are American Indian or Alaskan Native; 1% are Asian; and 49% are White. 38% of these grandparents live in household without the children’s parents present.

Additional Information

The Grandparents as Parents Support Group is facilitated by grandparents and other relatives caring for children in the Sioux Falls area. Begun five years ago through the Southeast Mental Health Center in Sioux Falls, this support group has also engaged in broader advocacy efforts including speaking engagements, meetings with local media representatives, and reaching out to other kinship care families through the local AARP office and the Center for Active Generations. The group meets monthly and regularly invites expert speakers to talk about issues affecting kinship care families. Contact: Sharon Hall at (605) 361-2645 or enrwh@msn.com.

Children in Foster Care

Sometimes state child welfare agencies place children in foster care with grandparents or other relatives. Most state agencies call these placements “kinship care.” In South Dakota, the Department of Social Services, Child Protection Services reports:

Number of children in kinship care: As of May 20, 2001, there were a total of 1,117 children in out-of-home placements under the supervision of the South Dakota Department of Social Services and in Tribal and private agency custody. Of these children, 183 (16.4%) were placed with kin.

Preferences for kinship care: South Dakota state procedures require that kin be considered first when an out-of-home placement is sought for an abused or neglected child, either “as a temporary placement until the child(ren) can be returned to the home of the parent(s) or guardian(s)” or as “the permanent plan for the child(ren).”

Kinship care licensing: There is no separate licensing program for kinship foster parents. Kin have to meet the same licensing standards and training requirements and receive the same foster care payment rate as non-kin foster parents. In some cases, kinship foster parents are eligible for one-time funds to purchase beds, dressers, and other items that they need in order to care for the children.

Subsidized guardianship programs: In addition to foster care payments and other benefits available to kin raising children in the foster care system, some states also have subsidized guardianship programs. South Dakota has a subsidized guardianship program that provides a subsidy to eligible children who are at least twelve years of age (with some exceptions) and children who have been in foster care for at least six months. The subsidy amount is based on the needs of the child, not to exceed the current foster care rate for the child. The state must document that the child cannot return home and that adoption is not possible or in the child’s best interest. Medical coverage is not provided. Contact: Duane E. Jenner, ACSW, Foster Care Program Specialist, at (605) 773-3227 or Duane.Jenner@state.sd.us.

Public Benefits

Children are often eligible for state and federal benefits even if their caregivers do not have legal guardianship or custody. These programs include:

Financial Assistance: Cash assistance may be available to children and their grandparents and other relative caregivers through South Dakota’s Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF).

- A “child-only grant” is for the child and based only on the child’s income.
• An adult caregiver may also be included in the grant — based on their income and subject to work requirements and time limits.

Call (605) 773-3612 or log on to www.state.sd.us/social.

Food Stamps: Kinship care families may also be eligible for food stamps to help meet their children’s food and nutrition needs. For more information, call (605) 773-3612 or log on to www.state.sd.us/social.

Health Insurance: Grandparents and other relative caregivers may apply for free or low-cost health insurance on behalf of the children they are raising through the South Dakota Children’s Health Insurance Program (CHIP). In some cases, caregivers may also be eligible for free coverage under Medicaid. For more information about how to apply to the Children’s Health Insurance Program, call (800) 305-3064 or (605) 773-4678 or log on to www.state.sd.us/social/medical/chip.

Other Benefits: Other state and federal benefits may also be available to eligible children, such as child care subsidies, disability benefits, and special education services. For more information about these, download CDF’s benefit guides for grandparents and other relatives raising children at www.childrensdefense.org or call (202) 662-3568. For more information on the federal benefits that may be available to caregivers, log on to the National Council on Aging’s Benefits CheckUp website at www.benefitscheckup.org.

State Laws

South Dakota currently does not have any state laws in effect specifically directed at kinship care families.
